

IT'S TIME TO CHANGE

By Harvey Kedward

Our planet is dying; its creatures are too,
We have to save it, there's so much to do
With words that young hearts can comprehend
Through this poem, our message we'll send

The clever orangutan, swinging with glee
In lush rainforests, from tree to tree
But their homes are vanishing, it's a plight
Leaving them struggling, shouldn't we fight.

The elusive snow leopard, a mountain ghost,
In snowy peaks, they wander the most.
But as snow melts away, their habitats shrink,
Leaving them struggling and on the brink.

The mighty blue whale, the largest of all
In vast blue oceans, they swim and call.
But plastic pollution in their aquatic home
Threatens their survival as they roam.

Let's stand together, united and strong
To protect these creatures, we've not got long.
We can make a change, with love and care
It's a responsibility that we all share!
