

Mother Nature

100k bc

The grass is growing wildly, and the ocean and land creatures are thriving, and the birds are flying freely. My new species man has been created and is starting to learn how to hunt and forage for food in my beautiful world. Man is just in the early stages of development, and I'm excited to see what they will create. The circle of life hasn't been affected by them they are mixing in with the other animals and only kill things like mammoth when they are hungry.

The wind is flowing gently, and humans have built great buildings and coliseums and have thriving fields of corn, have beautiful gardens. They are working with nature to make their gardens and creations beautiful. Also, they have started to build things called roads and they have started to cook! I am so, so happy with the decision to give the idea of man life. There is just one downside though... the different tribes and people have started to have wars with each other, but I'm sure they'll figure it out.

The countryside is my favourite place for that is where the flowers bloom in bunches and where the wind whistles clear and free. I'm highly sad for many of my beautiful creations have been killed by the humans and become extinct for example the Dodo bird just died out 1690's. As well as this, humans are starting to dig up all the minerals from the earth especially the coal. I don't know why they would need all that coal. I have given them everything they need on the surface of the earth. They have also started to design and make things called trains, which is some sort of metal carriage that transports you, that is powered by coal. I'm not too keen on these trains, they are bad for the environment and for the humans too... but I'm sure that man will figure something out and will make sure that the earth is taken care of. I also hope they will take care of the remaining animals that are living on the earth.

The air is polluted by fossil fuels, but some places are still beautiful the countryside, the rivers (however they are extremely polluted by plastic yet still beautiful) I still have hope but only time will tell. There are problems in the ozone layer meaning that there have been terrible heat waves and the ice in the arctic and Antarctica has started to melt. A disease started in 2019 (it is gone now but killed many) and some governments has declared war I really hope it doesn't turn out too badly and result in a WW3, but I may only hope. More animals have started to die out and become extinct as well however the people have started to campaign and protest for a better world and environment. I may only pray, hope and wish for a better world in future a world where these problems are gone... humans are clever they will help to heal the world but for now we must wait.
